Dixon's annual independent chautauqua, for which elaborate preparations have been made and for which an exceptionally fine program has been booked, will open Monday afternoon at Assembly Park and will continue every afternoon and evening next week, with indications of big crowds present at each entertainment.

Monday's program will be given by the Mason Jubilee Singers and Tom Corwine, polyphonic entertainer, humorist and story teller.

The Mason Jubilee Company, an organization of seven professional colored singers have proved to be one of the favorite attractions on the chautauqua of the middle west in 1926; it is hardly a town where they appeared last year but what has made a request for their return.

Four members of this company are college graduates and every member of the company is a singer of merit. The company has personality and showmanship. They confine themselves to negro plantation and folk songs, and spirituals. Booker T. Washington on one occasion made this appeal: "White folks, judge our race not by the worst, but by the best." The colored people of this country could well afford to be judged by the Mason Jubilee Singers.

Jubilee Company are always popular and there is one thing about the colored people on which all white people agree—we love to hear them sing.

Corwine is Funny.

It has been demonstrated time and again that chautauqua audiences like good, clean entertainment; they like to laugh and this year when Corwine appears we are told that we will do nothing but laugh.

For a number of years Corwine has ranked as one of the best all-around entertainers on the American platform. He is described as an entertainer, humorist and polyphonic imitator. His humorous sketches are irresistibly laughable. Many of his imitations are so real that his audience sometimes doubts whether he has not some artificial means to assist him. His abnormally developed faculty of imitation, working upon his lungs, mouth and lips, is all the assistance required.

His repertoire includes—music, vocal and instrumental; "Barnyard Morning and Evening Sounds"; "School Boy and Bumblebee"; "Rocking the Baby to Sleep"; "Telephoning to Kate So Pa Will Not Hear"; "Dogs Fighting in Front of a Country Post Office"; etc.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Schmucker, 1001 Galena avenue, are home from a two weeks' auto trip to Denver, Colo., where they visited their daughters, Mrs. Henry W. Helleney and Mrs. Lloyd Hart. Mr. and Mrs. Hart returned to Dixon with Mr. and Mrs. Schmucker, to reside.

P. Pelton, general manager of the Northern Illinois Service Co., and P. Wright, assistant manager of the Illinois Service Co., were callers at the Dixon motor coach service station Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Booth have moved their place of residence from Dixon avenue to Hennepin avenue in the house known as the Dr. Miller property, near the Public Library.

ILLNESS STOPS
DISCUSSION OF NAVAL POLICIESBritish Delegates Expected to Return
First of Week

Geneva, July 23.—(AP)—The illness of two admirals, Viscount Saito of Japan and Sir Frederick Field of Great Britain, and sultry weather precludes the possibility of even unofficial informal talks among delegates of the naval conference until the return from London of W. C. Bridgerman, first lord of the British admiralty, and Viscount Cecil, slated for Monday or Tuesday.

This, however, has not prevented the circulation of gossip in American quarters there appears a disposition to be less satisfied now over the Anglo-Japanese suggestion that in addition to the total tonnage of cruisers and destroyers stipulated in the projected treaty, Great Britain and the United States be permitted to maintain another 100,000 or 125,000 tons of so-called obsolete vessels, and that Japan have a proportionate number of tons.

WOMAN SENT TO

of Confession, is Denied by Judge

Rushville, Neb., July 23.—(AP)—A sentence of 30 years at hard labor was pronounced upon Mrs. Roy Wilson, 31, a farmer's wife, when she stood before a judge last night and asked that she be sent to the electric chair for the murder of her aged mother.

She was sentenced only a few hours after she confessed the slaying of Mrs. Daniel Loomis by giving her poison. Her father, to whom she also gave poison, is recovering.

Mrs. Wilson concealed the motive, but authorities said the mother was comfortably wealthy due to property left her by her father with the stipulation that upon her death it should go to her daughter.

Two Boys Named to

School in August

Two members of the agricultural class of the Dixon high schools have been appointed to represent Lee county at the annual state fair boys' school at Springfield next month. Stanley Lawton, route 1, Dixon, and Edward Bollman, route 6, Dixon, are the first two boys who have shown sufficient interest in the study of agriculture to make application for this honor and both have been accepted. They will attend the state fair boys' school which is held in conjunction with the Illinois state fair at Springfield, August 20 to 26 inclusive.

County Superintendent of Schools L. W. Miller stated today that he had been notified that Lee county's quota for the state fair boys' school this year had been increased from two to three students. There are no applications on hand at the county superintendent's office for the third member and any boy residing in the county desiring this appointment, is urged to file his application with the county superintendent at once.

Electro-Cultivation of Soil Being Tried

Rochester, N. Y., July 23.—(AP)—The Rochester Journal and Post Express says today that electro-cultivation of the soil by impregnation with 103,000 volts of electricity through the medium of a plow, is being tried in experiments with some success on the farms of Donald Woodward, millionaire agriculturist at Leroy, N. Y.

The process is the invention of H. L. He of Pittsburgh, who declares that it not only eliminates weeds and destroys bacteria and harmful grubs but restores the fertility of farm lands and produces crops in record time. The plow is drawn behind an ordinary tractor equipped with a generator which transmits the current to the plow whence it passes into the earth.

PLAN CONCRETE
FOR OLD BRICK
NEAR STERLINGLocal Highway Office is Busy Preparing Plans for Work

The replacing of the old brick stretch of three miles on the Lincoln Highway east of Sterling with concrete, is a matter of no small import in the local district offices of the state department of highways. It was announced this morning that the survey had been completed and plans for the much needed improvement were now under way in the Dixon offices. It was hinted that the contract for this work might possibly be let this year.

The brick stretch west on Sterling which is also in bad shape, is to receive attention soon. It was intimated. However, it was believed that this stretch would be included in the spur stretch of concrete paving which will connect Lyndon with the Prophets-town spur and come through Galt, connecting with the Lincoln Highway west of Sterling.

No Work on Route 2.

The tarvia stretch of paving on route 2 south of Dixon will not be resurfaced this season, it was announced today. This together with the bituminous macadam stretch east of Dixon on the Lincoln Highway, is to be maintained and repaired this season. At points where the paving broke through early in the spring, repairs are to be made but no resurfacing will be done this year.

The local office this morning reported rapid progress being made in the building of route 89, connecting Dixon to Princeton. The Rouse Construction Company, which is building the stretch from Walton to Dixon, is pouring between eight and nine hundred feet of cement daily. From present indications, it was expected that the road would be thrown open to traffic early in the winter.

The McCarthy Construction Company is also reported to be making rapid progress on route 70, the Meridian Highway, north of Rochelle. Barring delays, it is anticipated that all work will be completed between Rochelle and Rockford late this fall and the road thrown open to traffic in the early winter.

Chicago, July 23.—(AP)—The body of a man, dead apparently three days, kneeling beside a couch in an hotel apartment with a bullet through the heart and an alcove table set for three with one of the places undisturbed, provided the police today with a murder mystery.

The man was identified as Harvey Foxton who had a criminal record, but very little apparently had been heard of circumstances leading to the slaying.

On a chair near the couch was a pistol with one empty shell. Two persons apparently had supped at the table in the alcove.

Identification of the body was made by a young woman who was held for questioning.

AIMEE IS FACING
SHOWDOWN IN HER

Seen by Friends of the Evangelist

Los Angeles, July 23.—(AP)—Aimee McPherson, evangelist, returned today announcing she "had come back to take the helm" and emphasizing it by naming Rev. C. E. Jaynes business manager in place of her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy who, the evangelist said, was "to get his vacation."

Los Angeles, Calif., July 23.—(AP)—A test of diplomacy and church statesmanship in preserving the unity of her followers, faced Aimee McPherson as Angelus Temple, buzzing with dissension and strife, awaited her arrival from an interrupted revival at Alton, Illinois.

Mrs. Kennedy, mother of the evangelist and manager of the temple, recently charged irregularities in collections.

With both temple factions insisting the evangelist is on their side and displaying letters and telegrams to prove it, a showdown was anticipated at a mass meeting called by her for tonight in a telegram.

The telegram, addressed to Rev. C. A. Jaynes, pastor of the Riverside branch of the temple, was hailed as a promise of victory by the opponents of Mrs. Kennedy. He predicted that the outcome of the mass meeting would be a reorganization, with Mrs. McPherson enthroned as leader and dictator. He said reorganization plans made no "place for Mrs. Kennedy."

Mother Has Resigned.

Mrs. Kennedy recently announced her resignation as business manager. She said she desired a rest.

Earlier Jaynes made public a letter which he said was written by Mrs. McPherson. It disclosed that she had started her revival campaign with the idea that she would "step quietly" out of the temple. The letter said she would spend her entire time in the field rather than fight with her mother.

Mrs. Kennedy refused to believe that the letter was written by her daughter. If it were signed by her it meant someone else had written it and she had signed without considering it she said.

Say Bud Stillman Has Kidnapped His Bride

New York.—The New York Daily News, today in a copyright dispatch from Grande Anse, Quebec, says a quarrel between the Stillmans and Wilsons resulted in Bud Stillman "kidnapping" Lena Wilson, his 18 year old north woods sweetheart and taking her to his mother's camp for their marriage next Tuesday. The quarrel is reported due to religious and social barriers raised by the Wilson family, farmers, and the matter was only settled when Bud carried the hysterical Lena in a battered car over 20 miles of forest trails to his mother's camp.

CAROL IS NOT PLANNING ANY COUP; REPORTAlarm Premature in Opinion European Courts Today

Paris, July 23.—(AP)—The stir created in European courts by the words "King Carol of Rumania" in a statement to the newspapers, which was taken to indicate that the banished prince considered himself successor to the throne, had subsided today.

The alarm appears to have been premature, one newspaper declaring an inquiry showed the title was added to the statement by an over-zealous friend. As originally issued, the statement contained nothing which could possibly be construed as a claim to the throne, the paper said.

Carol is quoted by the Matin as having said to its foreign editor that he had no intention under the present circumstances "to make any manifestation which might disturb the composure which should mark the royal obsequies."

Having failed to get a direct reply to a request for permission to attend the funeral, Carol has sent a message to his sister to place flowers on the coffin for him.

Stays in Seclusion.

Carol continues in strict seclusion at his villa, alone with his grief and denying requests for a statement.

There are few callers, but Mme. Lupescu, who came with him to Rumania when he renounced his rights to the throne, is a frequent visitor. His friends regard her influence, so far as his succession to the throne is concerned, as unfortunate, but they agree that he has been greatly helped by her moral support.

Nevertheless former friends and supporters describe him as suffering from a general paralysis of will power and ambition since his father's death.

One Rumanian said: "Carol will never be king of Rumania by remaining shut up in his villa; he must gamble with popularity, even with his own life."

Prominent Rumanians here said Queen Marie, while only a dowager queen, wields more power in Rumania at present than during her husband's reign.

THOUSANDS MOURN.

Bucharest, July 23.—(AP)—More than 250,000 Rumanians have honored their dead king by filing past his lie in Cotrocene Palace. Peasants and townsfolk from outlying places continued to arrive today and before Ferdinand's body is laid to rest Sunday in the royal mausoleum many more thousands will have gazed upon the features of the "Father."

Queen Marie, receiving the correspondent, told of Ferdinand's longing to see America.

"It was the king's ardent wish to visit America before he died," she said.

"There were tears in her eyes when she referred to Ferdinand as 'a great king, a good man and the kindest of husbands.'"

She asked that the correspondent convey to her friends in America her appreciation for the many touching messages of sympathy that have come.

Boy King Concerned.

The boy king, Michael was brought in by Princess Helen, his mother. The blond haired, blue eyed youngster seemed unable to realize his grand father who only lately had presented him with an American teddy bear and toys, was dead, and that, although less than six years old, he was ruler over fifteen million persons.

"Don't cry, grand father will come back to us," said the little fellow in perfect English to the Queen.

The most pathetic figure in the room was Princess Helen, who after suffering from the ignominy of desertion by her husband, Carol, now is called upon to bear the loss of her father-in-law to whom she was deeply attached.

With the failure of Queen Marie to obtain a place on the Rumanian regency, Princess Helen has suddenly loomed into prominence. She is given much space in the newspapers.

Bousum is 23 years old. He is charged with stealing a gun and a small amount of money from the Louis Schaaf home in Rock Falls. He was caught when he returned to his home in Dixon. His bonds have been fixed at $3,000.

BULLETIN.

Benton, Ill., July 23.—(AP)—The case of Charles Birger, southern Illinois gang leader, Art Newman and Ray Hyland, on trial for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, went to the jury at 2:05 p. m. today.

Benton, Ill., July 23.—(AP)—Charles Birger, Art Newman and Ray Hyland must be hanged to vindicate the law, State Attorney Roy C. Martin declared today in his closing argument to the jury in the gangsters' trial for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, last December 18. "My only ambition," the state's attorney said, "is to silence the machine guns, pistols and rifles in this terrible gang war which has torn southern Illinois."

"The defendants plead for mercy: The state pleads for justice. These men had no mercy when they sent the slayers to Joe Adams' home where they shot him down amidst his family."

"The defense painted for you a great picture of the avenue of life. You were told that God gives life and is the only one who has power to take it away."

Built Own Scaffolds

"These three men, when they planned the murder of Mayor Adams built their own scaffolds; these men have come down the avenue of life and find themselves at the end of their rope; they are standing on a hangman's platform, which they built themselves and all that I ask is that you do not take these men by the hand and lead them away from the position in which they have placed themselves."

The court room was jammed with the greatest crowd since the trial began July 6. The tension was pronounced and deputy sheriffs appeared worried when a woman fainted in the rear of the room. The jury was excused until the woman could be carried out.

Martin told the jurors they would be doing their country and state a service by convicting the gangsters.

Calls Jurors Heroes

"You men who are facing the threat of Charles Birger's machine guns, by bringing in a verdict of guilty, will be as brave as the men who faced enemy machine guns in France," he said.

"Let us take up the testimony of Ray Thomasson, brother of Harry, who confessed he killed Adams. Ray testifies that after his brother was in prison for robbery Birger called Ray to his home in Harrisburg and told him to tell Harry to 'stand pat on this Adams deal or they will hang us both.'"

"Charles Birger thereby confessed his own part in the crime to Ray Thomasson. He fixed his own punishment at death. Yes, he pleaded guilty and fixed his own punishment."

The prosecutor opened a Bible and turned to W. F. Dillon, Newman's attorney, who quoted passages from the scripture yesterday.

"Try this case from the Bible if you will, Judge Dillon. I'll get you on that ground."

He then read several verses in the Old Testament in which murderers were condemned to be "surely put to death."

"This is a perfect case," Martin declared. "Nobody denies it. Not a word of testimony has been presented to contradict it. The eyes of the state are on this verdict. It will decide whether law has come back to southern Illinois."

The jury was unusually solemn. This solemnity was reflected by the defendants. Birger looked haggard, Hyland glum, and Newman gloomy.

"What's the difference between an acquaintance and a friend?"
"Well when a friend wants to borrow money, then he's an acquaintance."

How About That Granary?
Remember last year you said, "By George, I'm going to have a decent granary next year!" Well, now's the time to start it. The weeks pass pretty fast and it will be harvest time before you know it. Come in and let's talk this granary proposition over.

Professor: "I go farther than believing in woman suffrage. I believe that man and woman are equal."

Co-ed: "Oh, come, professor, now you're boasting."

Menus for the Family

BREAKFAST—Apple sauce, cereal, cream, breadcrumb pancakes, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Baked rice and bacon, brown bread and butter sandwiches, butterscotch cookies, berries, with sugar and cream, lemonade.

DINNER—Jellied veal loaf, potato chips, buttered new peas, prune and cream cheese salad, peach tapioca pudding, milk, coffee.

With the exception of the peas which will cook in 20 minutes, this dinner can all be prepared and left in the ice box until wanted.

The cookies suggested in the luncheon menu are the ice box variety, made up and formed into a roll the night before. The roll of dough is put into the refrigerator to chill and the cookies are made by cutting in thin slices with a sharp knife and baking as usual. The chilling and slicing is much less tedious than the rolling and cutting religiously adhered to by our grandmothers.

Baker Rice and Bacon.
Two cups stewed tomatoes, 1 small onion, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 whole cloves, 2 cups cooked rice, 1-2 pound sliced bacon, 1-2 cup stale coarse bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon butter. Peel and mince onion. Cook tomatoes, onion, pepper and cloves closely covered for 20 minutes. Rub through a strainer. Broil bacon. Put a layer of rice in the bottom of a well-buttered baking dish, add a layer of bacon and continue layer for layer until all is used. Pour hot tomato puree over mixture. Cover top with crumbs, dot with butter and bake 25 minutes in a hot oven. Serve from baking dish.

Held Union Meeting At Church Thursday

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the Methodist church, held a union meeting at the church, Thursday afternoon. The devotional service was led by Mrs. Clara Rowe, who also gave a short report of the Missionary Institute recently held at Franklin Grove. A short business session for the home Society was conducted by the president, Mrs. Charles Willford, and Miss Callie Morgan presided, while the necessary business of the Foreign Society was transacted. The members of the latter were reminded that all monies must be in the treasurer's hands by the last week in August, as the district treasurer requests that the money reach her by Sept. 1st.

A union picnic will be held next month. The Mite Box opening will be observed by the Foreign organization.

The program for the afternoon was of unusual interest. Piano solos were rendered by Olive Gartner and Edwina Keyes, members of the Home Guards-Kings Herads, and Mrs. W. W. Marshall gave a very interesting address on Life in Gibraltar. She with her husband, Rev. W. W. Marshall, pastor of the Baptist church in this city, spent several years there in Christian work during the World War, so her talk was rich in personal incidents and encouraging accounts of the manner in which the Gospel message was received.

Several visitors were present at the meeting Thursday, among whom was one of the officers of the Northwestern Branch of the W. F. M. S., Miss Edna Smith of Springfield, who is treasurer. Here is a very responsible position, as Northwestern branch includes four states, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan. She in Stockholm, Sweden, and many other

During the afternoon cooling drinks were served, and a bounteous dinner in the evening, served by the caterers, brought the happy day to a close.

Monday

LA SALLE CARAVAN for one day only at the Cadillac Dealers' Show Room Until 10:00 P. M.

This Caravan Comprises the Entire LaSalle Line from Sport Models to 5-Passenger Sedan. Novel Combinations of Gorgeous Colors Never Before Shown in This City. You Are Cordially Invited to Attend This Remarkable Exhibit and to Ride in or Drive the LaSalle.

To bring the local motorists a truly metropolitan showing of the LaSalle is no ordinary event. And tomorrow, you have the opportunity of making first hand observations of every model. May we remind you of a few outstanding features of this car?

First, consider that LaSalle benefitted by fourteen years of Cadillac experience in building 90° V-Type 8-Cylinder Engines—the entire scientific and mechanical data of General Motors Corporation—and four years of tests before the first car was marketed.

Chosen as pacemaker for the Indianapolis race, the LaSalle has since given another and more recent demonstration of its fibre when it averaged 95.8 miles an hour for 10 hours. This states the case for the 90° V-Type Eight Motor. Don't miss seeing these models tomorrow. They will be here one day only.

You will not be urged into a sale. We simply want you to know this car. And we are positive of one thing—no man or woman can drive the LaSalle and fail to speak a good word for it.

MORE HONOR TO CHAMBERLIN.

If President Coolidge or Congress cannot find some way to give Pilot Clarence Chamberlin a national honor, the country will be shamefully passing up one of the best and most courageous aviators that ever put on flying clothes.

This plea is not made through sympathy for a man whose misfortunes might be considered as due to some strange jinx, but through a sincere desire to see simple justice done to a man of unlimited courage who deserves a better deal than he has been given.

Sticking to an expedition which for weeks was threatened by strife among its backers and workers, Chamberlin pulled it through, broke the world's record for non-stop distance flying, carrying a passenger who was neither pilot nor navigator. He flew through almost as much fog and bad weather as Lindbergh encountered. His were the steady hand and the cool head that made the expedition what it was.

The brilliancy of his achievement has been dimmed by the suits which the government has threatened to institute against Levine for carrying mail without authority, and for investigation of war junk contracts, with which Chamberlin had nothing to do.

Typical of the undeserved cold shoulder which Chamberlin has received is the War Department's sorry finding that the best it can offer Chamberlin is a commission as second lieutenant in the reserve corps. The offer amounts practically to insult, for Chamberlin won a commission in 1917, and was an instructor at Kelly and McCook fields all through the war. Still the War Department claims that it cannot offer him a flying cross because he is not a member of either the militia or the organized reserve.

This is shabby treatment. If a special act of Congress is required to give this man due honor, by all means let's have that special act in a hurry.

NO SANTA CLAUS IN HOLLYWOOD.

The little girl who some years ago wrote to a New York editor asking if there really was a Santa Claus received editorial assurances that have since become part of the classic literature of hope and optimism.

A little girl who recently wrote to a casting director in Hollywood asking if there was hope for a job in moviedom has received advice to stay at home. The casting director's letter, made public in a movie distributors' magazine, is literature of dark despair, but it deserves lasting fame, none the less.

"There are 18,000 men, women and children in Hollywood looking for work in the movies," writes the casting director, who then gives figures to show that only 710 of them can be used on an average day, and that few of the 18,000 make $25 a week.

"If it is riches you seek," writes the director, "you will have a better chance if you bet all your money in a 50 to 1 shot at the races. If you want fame, jump off the Brooklyn bridge. You have a better chance to land safely than you have to become a moving picture star.

"No matter what other profession you choose, you will have a better chance to gain the top in it than you will in motion pictures. Try banking, or surgery, or singing, or engineering, or flying—anything will give you a better return on your investment than a campaign to try to become a movie actor, because in no other profession is the competition so great."

In Hollywood, it seems, there is no Santa Claus, and the sooner the fact becomes nationally known, the sooner will ambitious youngsters settle down to useful labor and find happiness.

TOO MANY BORDER COOKS.

Agitation for consolidation of all government border patrol services—customs, prohibition and immigration—is a movement deserving solid support in the interests of economy. The wait that too many people are now on public pay-rolls has been raised all too frequently of late, and the federal government's efforts to reduce surplus employees is worthy of emulation by state, county and city governments everywhere.

The stumbling block for the organization of all federal border services into one force comes in the matter of who shall be boss. Customs and prohibition forces are under separate branches of the treasury. Immigration is a Department of Labor problem.

If the varying interests of labor and treasury departments cannot be combined, it should at least be possible one patrol to do the work of the two treasury services now in operation.

Secretary Wilbur criticizes the Pacific flyers for sending out an SOS that they were about to come down in the Pacific, and then continuing their flight which ended in a tree on Molokai. There now, secretary, there now!

Social Note: President Coolidge attended a farmers' picnic in South Dakota the other day. After a little discussion of farm conditions by Governor Bulow it took a banjo player several hours to calm the guests.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The jelly beans were round and long, and grew on bushes very strong. The bushes towered up very high, over the tops of the trees. Whoever planted them sure knew the proper things that he should do for everything was neatness, and they stood in even rows.

Woe Clowny started in to pick and said, "I'll bet that I get sick. I guess I'll store a lot away and fill my pockets full. Its just as easy as can be to pull the dandy candy free. The quickest way to do it is to simply stand and pull."

"Well, don't be pigish," Scouty cried. "Put all you want on your inside, but let's not fill our pockets. That would surely be quite wrong. When we have had all we can eat, 'tis best that we all be discreet and leave a few for other folks who chance to come along."

"You're right!" said Carpy. "Let's be kind, and not take all the beans we find. I guess we'd best behave ourselves while we're in Candy Land. At present everything seems well, but that might change. Now, who can tell? Remember, everything we do by some kind friend is planned."

And so they ate till satisfied. All different colored beans were tried. And then Woe Copy stretched a bit and said, "I'm feeling grand, but now I've really had enough. I do not care to stand and stuff. Just then they heard a flutter of some wings right near at hand.

"Oh, look!" cried Scouty, "Something brown from yonder bush has just hopped down." The Tinites stood and looked at it—and then they stared again. Then Clowny waved his pointed hat. "I've never seen a thing like that," said he, "As sure as we're alive, that bird's a chocolate hen."

Whatever may be said, the Germans had a great deal of respect for their dead. At the same time, they overlooked no opportunities. Deep in the heart of the Argonne Forest, which was held by German troops for four years before American divisions and French troops squeezed them out at the gap at Grand Pre, are many cemeteries. Designed with consummate care, the plots are sheltered by high stone walls and monuments, while of the same heavy type of architecture as the statue at the confluence of the Rhine and Moselle rivers, are impressive. Many of the markers are of stone, while others are fashioned uniquely of heavy timbers.

Buried in the fastnesses, where one may come upon them only by accident or under the direction of a native who knows the forest, these cemeteries are deeply impressive. Wilhelmplatz, where the men of the Landwehr divisions of the Crown Prince lie, cannot help but bring its note of awe and respect, and its touch of admiration to those who see it today.

Yet not far from Wilhelmplatz, a kilometer or so up another woodland path, there is another cemetery, also German. The timbered arch of the entrance is sagging with rot. The stones and wooded markers are overgrown with ivy and moss. All in this spot—in this cemetery—that a resistance to the American advance was made which was one of the fiercest of the war.

With machine guns mounted on the largest monument and others manned from behind the numerous gravestones, the Germans stopped Major K. P. Budd and the 308th Infantry for 24 hours. Attack after at-

SAINT and SINNER

On her short, swift journey down the hall to Cherry's room, hideous fears flitted like bats through Faith's mind. Had she made Cherry hate her? Would Cherry really leave the only home she had, taking her baby—the precious, adorable baby with her? Had she cast her own sister—the little sister whom she had always worshipped and served—out into the world, penniless, burdened with a child to support?

"That you, Bob?" Cherry's strangled voice called out.

"It's Faith, Cherry! Please, darling, let me in!"

There was a long silence, broken at last by a loud sob. Then, when Faith was about to begin pleading again, the key turned in the lock and the door was opened a crack.

"I—I didn't want to see you—just yet," Cherry sobbed from within, as she clung to the doorknob. "I—I wanted to be all ready to leave—so you'd know I wasn't just—bluffing."

"Cherry, darling!" Faith cried despairingly. The door yielded reluctantly to her pressure and in a moment she was kneeling beside a huddled little figure on the floor. "Why do you want to leave me, honey? Surely you didn't think I meant—that! Will you forgive me, Cherry? Oh, darling, I can't bear this! Don't hate me!"

"I'm not angry with you, Faith!" she gasped. "I don't hate you, honey! I adore you! Didn't you know that? But I thought it would be so much better for you—and Bob—if I went away and took my little baby—"

"You shan't take the baby," Faith sobbed. "And I'm not going to let you go either. I'd not be happy another minute of my life if you did. Oh, Cherry!" She strained the slight figure to her breast with a fierce passion, more maternal than sisterly.

"You ought to let me go!" Cherry had the strength of character to protest. "It's not good for your marriage, having all of us here. And it's not good for me to be dependent. That's the reason I wanted to work. I can't bear to live on Bob's generosity any longer. It's not good for me," she reiterated, with childish desperation, her golden eyes searching Faith's face hopefully but fearfully.

"Don't be absurd, darling," Faith begged her, cupping the beloved tear-dusted little face in her hands. "We belong together, Cherry. Mother would be terribly unhappy if she knew you were away from me. She always trusted you to me."

Cherry gave in suddenly, her effort at establishing her independence of the sister who had always been too kind to her succumbing to the mention of the one name that had always been able to stir her profoundly.

Faith, after a bit, during which they held each other very tightly, helped her to replace the garments she had flung out of closets and dresser drawers. When they had finished and Cherry was stretched wearily upon her small, green painted bed, Faith forced herself to return to her room, where she knew she would find Bob awaiting her.

She found him seated in her own low chair by the window, the baby upon his knees, one of his big, brown fingers held tightly in a miniature first. The quizzical smile with which he had been regarding Cherry's baby lingered as he looked up at his wife.

"Cherry's going to stay, of course?"

I knew she would. It's rather a pity, isn't it, all things considered?"

She did not dare ask him what he meant.

Amazing increase in Pontiac Six value made possible by the economies of the world's newest and finest motor car factory.

And these were passed to the public, together with the additional value represented in new Duco colors!

These are only a few of the features which make today's Pontiac Six a triumph of modern design and production! Come in! Learn how much MORE you get in the Pontiac Six at new low prices!

The basis of the talk was Proverbs 11:15-31: "And he shall come to his grave in an old age like a shock of corn in its season." When a Man Loves

By ALLIE LOWE MILES

John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Picture
tization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Fabien, a good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood, but meeting Manon Lescaut, a beautiful orphan, being taken to a convent by her only relative, a rascally brother who doesn't want to be bothered with her, Fabien falls in love with her. Manon's brother, seeing Ravaot, a rich connoisseur of women, smitten with her, realizes her worldly value, and barters her for gold to Ravaot. But Fabien, forgetting his plan to be a priest, steals Ravaot's coach and carries Manon to Paris. There, Manon innocently covets a diamond bracelet.

"You wait here and watch these things—I will be back in a moment," Fabien advised as he put down their luggage on the street beside Manon and strode into the store.

Unfortunately it was one of the most exclusive and expensive shops in Paris. It was an ornate jewel in itself. But Fabien did not think or know anything at the moment except that Manon wanted something and that he was there to get it for her.

He entered with all the confidence of a man possessing unlimited funds. Being a gentleman by birth, it was quite natural for Fabien to ignore the smirk of the foppish and elegantly attired owner and demand that he bring the little diamond locket from the window.

Rubbing his hands in keen anticipation and bowing obsequiously the while, the dapper owner soon placed in Fabien's hands the priceless medallion which Manon in her childish desire had so coveted and which Fabien in his eager ardor to please her was now examining with more attention.

With assumed carelessness Fabien brought forth his nearly depleted purse and casually inquired the price.

"Ah, monsieur, the price? It is a mere trifle!" bowed the jeweler and only one thousand Louis D'Or.

With a gasp of dismay Fabien staggered back, pathetically clutching the slim purse. Gone in a moment was his beautiful dream of continued with a shrug of his shoulders: "It is really of little consequence. The price, monsieur, is placing in Manon's hand the lovely bauble her heart so desired. In its place came a true vision, one of stern realities and the immediate necessity of replenishing his small hoard of gold coins.

Glancing over his shoulder, through the window he saw Manon with her beautiful young face pressed eagerly against the glass. Her trust in Fabien was implicit and her faith in his ability to please her was unbounded.

With strengthened courage Fabien turned back to the jeweler and said, "Have you something for about a Louis?"

Turning his back, with a withering glance of disdain, the jeweler spun about with a pompous dignity that to Fabien would have been ridiculous had it been less serious, and stalked off to the rear of the store. He signaled for his junior salesman to take care of the trifling wants of a customer whose flat purse was an insult to the traditions of the fashionable shop.

Fabien completely lost his grand manner and apologetically made known his wishes. Much to his chagrin he found that even the cheapest locket in the establishment was beyond the amount in his purse, and even the apprentice salesman looked upon him with scorn.

But Manon must be pleased. Her eager childish face was still pressed against the window. Desperately Fabien searched his pockets for anything that might possibly be turned into money to add to his pitifully small amount.

Suddenly his downcast eyes lighted up as he noticed the ornate silver buckles on his well fitting shoes. Here at last was something that would keep the smile on Manon's pretty lips.

Fabien gave a short despairing glance at Manon and turning to the salesman said, "If monsieur will accept these buckles in exchange for the locket—"

With a glance of disgust the salesman turned away and sought the owner. In a moment they returned and after carefully examining the buckles grudgingly agreed to the trade.

With a light heart and smiling face Fabien received the precious package and eagerly returned to Manon, who, having already grown tired of waiting, had turned away from the window and was ardently watching each elegantly gowned woman who passed.

To Manon's childish mind the sharp contrast of the beautiful silks and rustling gowns to her own meagre outfit brought a pang of envy to her heart, but she smilingly turned to meet Fabien with outstretched hands. The beautiful medallion would soon make her forget her envy of these other women. Besides, would not Fabien buy her all the pretty things that the shops had to offer?

Anxiously Fabien watched as her dainty fingers quickly unwrapped the small package he had given her. Eagerly she undid the last cord and as eagerly raised the cover. The tiny cheap locket met her gaze—the locket for which Fabien had been forced to exchange his silver shoe buckles in order to meet the price.

A startled cry of disappointment escaped Manon as she said, "Fabien, this is not the locket—" then her lifted eyes caught the look of agony on his face. She dropped her head in shame. Her lowered glance took in Fabien's shoes—without the buckles. Then she understood. Her arms gripped him spasmodically, her eyes filled with tears and, with a holy smile lighting up her face she said, "Fabien, it is the most beautiful locket in the world."

CHAPTER V
And so once more it was wonderful to be alive. The world again was smiling on these two lovers as hand in hand they continued on their way, with eyes only for each other, and satisfied with the message they conveyed.

A thunder clap and the sudden pet of rain brought them to their senses, and realizing the immediate need for shelter, they hurried along.

The shabby little door of a pension across the way offered them shelter, and guiding Manon through the hurrying throng, Fabien was relieved to take what small protection it gave.

The door of the pension suddenly opened behind them as they stood there, and completely framed therein stood a fat landlady. She eyed them curiously for a moment, then smiled knowingly and said:

"Does the gentleman wish a room for himself and his pretty wife?"

With a startled glance Manon and Fabien looked at each other. For a moment they did not grasp the real purport of the words.

Without waiting for them to reply the landlady continued, "I've just the place you're looking for and very cheap, too."

Again Manon and Fabien gazed earnestly at each other. Then as the possibility for shelter was so alarming, Fabien decided that they had no choice in the matter and nodded his head affirmatively.

The interior of the pension was even shabbier than the outside. It was fortunate that an economic lighting system could conceal rather than display the untidy walls and faded carpets.

Marie, a starved, yet wise little soul, was the maid of all work. Her greatest pleasure was to peek into the lives of others and find out how they spent their time. To her house cleaning was as uninteresting as the life of an irreproachable boarder.

In short, Marie reveled in dirt—of all kinds—and that is one reason that this particular pension had more on the surface than is usual with such places.

When the landlady summoned Marie to show the new arrivals to the vacant room she left her dust broom and pan on the stairs and clattered down with excitement enough to make one believe she had been invited on an all day's excursion.

"New people—men? Where are they from? Wonder what they're like?" she thought as she came toward them in the dimly lighted hall.

Marie prided herself on the fact that nothing could surprise her, so it was quite a tribute to Manon when the landlady's mouth dropped open and her eyes stared in amazement.

"Glorious!" thought Marie. "She's an angel!"

AN HONEST ROGUE

Ponca City, Okla.—(AP)—An honest man's picture will offset the rogue's gallery in the police station here. G. A. Ratcliff of Fort Smith, Ark., parked his motor car in a forbidden spot and was tagged. He was in a hurry and left the city, but sent back a check for $2.50 to pay his fine. Sam Tulk, police chief, returned the check to Ratcliff and asked for his photograph. It will be framed, Tulk says.

FINDS SCHILLER LETTER

Prague, Czechoslovakia—A hitherto unknown letter of Friedrich von Schiller was found at the town of Asch by the college professor L. Hueller. The letter, not dated, is addressed to Amalie von Imhoff, a niece of Frau von Stein, whose epic poem "The Sisters of Lesbos" was included in Schiller's Almanac of the Muses in 1809. It is assumed that it was written during the last years of the great German author's life.

KNOCKOUT BLOW STILL DISPUTED BY BOXING FANS

Official Verdict that Blow Was Fair Unshaken Today

New York, July 23—(AP)—Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey today were far from the scene of their memorable battle of Thursday night, either at home or on the way, but a self-appointed jury of fans still was locked in hopeless disagreement over whether the blow that gave Dempsey a knockout was fair or foul.

Carefully avoiding Pennsylvania where he is wanted on a charge of assault growing out of the alleged elbowing of a woman spectator at the Dempsey-Tunney fight last fall, Dempsey was homeward bound for Los Angeles and a brief rest after the victory he believes he fairly won. Sharkey, back home in Boston, was positive he would have won but for a blow he declares was below the belt.

Opinion appeared as evenly divided as ever, but the official verdict that the blow was fair, stood unshaken. The state boxing commission, which never has reversed a decision of an official, stood squarely behind Jack O'Sullivan, veteran referee, who counted Sharkey out, and even Sharkey's manager held no hope of a reversal by appeal to the commission.

Admit Low Blow. O'Sullivan said: "There is no question about a punch on Sharkey's leg in the seventh round by Dempsey's right. It was a sweeping blow which glanced off the leg and it was followed by Dempsey's left to the solar plexus."

"I do not regard the blow Sharkey received on the leg as sufficient cause for disqualification. They are delivered quite regularly in the excitement of competition and are not harmful. They merit simply a warning," which O'Sullivan said he gave.

Dempsey before the solar plexus blow.

Silence of the radio account concerning the disputed blows was explained today when it was learned neither Graham McNamee, who did the broadcasting, nor Major J. A. White who broadcast his impressions later, believed a foul was committed. Movies of the fight served but to convince fans and experts alike of their original opinions.

SLIPPING CUBS DROP ANOTHER; LOSE THE LEAD

Leadership of National League Has Changed Hands Again

(By the Associated Press.)
A victory for the Pirates while the Cubs were losing carried Pittsburgh into first place in the National League again.

When Pittsburgh forged ahead by beating the Braves 5-2, yesterday while the Phillies were downing the Cubs again by 6-5, the leadership changed hands for the fifth time in five days.

Hard hitting helped the Pirates win and errors caused the Cubs to lose.

Meanwhile the Cardinals were clipping along, banging two homers in the seventh to humble the Giants 7-4. Lucas of the Cincinnati Reds blanked the Robins by 3-0 in a duel with Dizzy Vance, granting but one scratch hit.

Of the three American League games played, one was lost by the Yankees and the other two by the Senators. The Yanks had a ninth inning rally with the White Sox, but it failed. The 7-5 victory for Lyons

The Primrose Path

Youth is the time the mind lays out its primrose pathways. They are always just ahead.

In school we look up the road a few years and see ourselves in college. When we get there—if we do—we again look up the road and see ourselves in a profession or business.

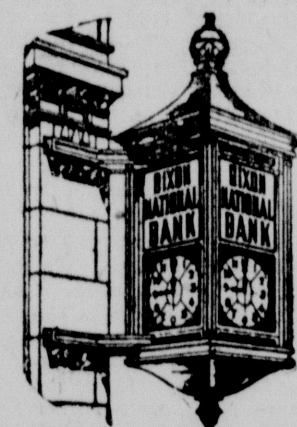

All of that may be just idle dreaming or it may be realized by Faith and determination.

The secret of life is to pull these dream places down out of the clouds and get them firmly fixed in the consciousness.

Two ball players were knocked down and one completely out when hit by baseballs. Earl Combs, Yankee outfielder, was struck in the head in practice and was knocked unconscious. Catcher Taylor of the Giants was hit in the forehead by a foul tip from his own bat. Neither player was in a serious condition.

tractions they do not have. Such objectionable features as noise making wild west shows, athletic bouts, repulsive snake shows, dangerous long range shooting galleries, uninteresting, highly objectionable girl shows all have been relegated to the scrap heap by the Brundage company and have never found a place on the midway. The sale of confetti and other novelties that are designated to torment the midway patron are all classed as objectionable by the carnival management and are not tolerated.

Twenty attractions of genuine merit will be on tap during the week of merriment. The carnival will exhibit on the large acreage across from Singers' oil station, Lincoln Highway, and the festival is being staged under the auspices of Red Rooster club.
